

Key Questions to ask your Doctor or Nurse

 Bladder Cancer: Important information to discuss with your doctor.

Ask your doctor to provide details about your diagnosis, including:

- Type:
- Stage:
- Grade:

Understanding diagnosis and prognosis

- What type of bladder cancer do I have? What does that mean?

- What stage is my bladder cancer at, and what does that mean?

- What grade of bladder cancer do I have? What does this mean?

- Could you explain to me in detail what the next steps are?

- Are there any additional tests I should consider or undergo?

- Can you provide information on support groups or counselling services for bladder cancer patients?

- What kind of support and resources are available for carers/caregivers or loved ones involved in my care?

Reach out to us:

If you have questions, need information or resources about bladder cancer, you can reach out to us at patients@worldbladdercancer.org. We're here to help guide you to available information and support resources.

Remember that seeking support can make a difference in your bladder cancer experience. Don't hesitate to reach out to these groups and organisations; they are there to support you every step of the way.

Your doctor or nurse can help connect you with other patients on a similar journey, if there are no established bladder cancer support groups in your country.

If you feel ready to start your own, the World Bladder Cancer Patient Coalition has resources to support you on this journey.

The World Bladder Cancer Patient Coalition gratefully acknowledges the support of AstraZeneca, Ferring, Johnson & Johnson, Merck and Roche. The content of this publication remains the sole responsibility of the World Bladder Cancer Patient Coalition.
